Breaking Barriers Needs Help

Dear Editor:

I am looking for 50 people who can give one hour a week to help transport people with HIV and AIDS to their appointments. The holidays are a time of year when we take a look at our lives, give thanks for what we have, and extend a hand to those less fortunate. While these deeds are indeed very noble, we are looking for people who are willing to give of themselves beyond January 1. Breaking Barriers provides volunteer-based services, and the Transit Partner program, which is in desperate need of volunteers. Since March of 1998, we have received 1,739 requests for transportation. That's an increase of over 40% since our last fiscal year. Most rides provided are for doctor, counseling appointments, food bank, support groups, and the pharmacy. The majority occurs within regular business hours, Monday through Friday, 8am to 6pm. These appointments are essential for our clients to maintain an independent existence. A large number of our clients are single mom's, trying to maintain a home while living with HIV/AIDS. At the same time that the requests for rides have significantly risen, we've also experienced increased need in our Food Delivery and Household Help programs. In your New Year's resolutions this year, please include finding time, an hour a week, to help those who need you throughout the year. To volunteer with us please call me at 447-AIDS.

Sincerely,
Erin Wright-Recruitment and Training Coordinator

Declined Services at CARES?

Dear Editor:

As a client of CARES for the past two years, I am very upset and concerned about the overall management of the clinic. The move into their new facility has led to a major decline in the level of service provided to clients. It now takes over 30 days to see a physician, telephone calls are never answered by a real person, along with prescription refill taking over 48 hours. Messages left with a specific person at CARES after receiving a voice mail message first is rarely returned.

CARES needs to evaluate the level of service they provide. Changes need to be made which will solve the "growing pains" associated with their relocation. Due to the specializing field of HIV care the result is CARES having an attitude that they are the only game in town. Please CARES address the problems and decline of service provided. Make the necessary changes!

Sincerely,
Concerned CARES Client

Support Your Local Gay and Lesbian Bookstores

Dear Editor:

We recently received a disturbing letter from one of our gay distributors. "The independent retail book industry, including the gay/lesbian/sexual alternative market is going through the most difficult period in recent history. We are getting attacked by the chains on one side and from the Internet (see recent cover story in TIME) on the other. The retailers are struggling to stay alive during this period. Three-quarters of our major stores are running 45 days or more behind in their payments. Our monthly sales are off an average of 30% and returns (of unsold books and magazines) are higher than ever before. It is our sincere belief that the industry will stabilize within the next few months, although it may stabilize at a pace lower than that to which we have become accustomed. We have reacted to the crisis by cutting down the hours of our employees and cut off unessential expenses." There is nothing any of us in publishing can do about the Internet, which is probably the future of written and pictorial communications. But there is definitely something gay readers can do when it comes to keeping gay and lesbian booksellers from going out of business, and that is to buy gay-themed books from gay stores instead of the chains, even if the same books are selling at the chainstores for less.

The survival of gay publishers and writers depends utterly on the survival of gay bookstores. Put the gay bookstore out of business and you will put the majority of gay writers out of a distribution outlet and therefore out of print since, no matter how large their gay sections may be, no chain bookstore has ever had or will ever have a gay inventory one quarter as large as that of most gay bookstores. Gay bookstores stock slow selling books for years and in that way nurture and sustain gay writers and publishers; chain stores, if they buy from small publishers at all, stock books only so long as they sell well. Put the gay bookstore out of business today, you'll put the gay publisher out of business tomorrow; gay writers will have to be best selling writers to get published at all, competing for megabuck contracts from major publishing companies, and the gay sections in superstore bookstore chains will dwindle in size until they disappear for good. Please keep gay publishers and publications in business; patronize you gay booksellers. Consider the small discount you would save at a super bookstore chain as your dues to the gay community, your contribution toward keeping gay writing and publishing alive.

Sincerely,
Lee Channower

Larry Kramer Blasts Time

The following letter was sent by Larry Kramer to Walter Isaacson, the managing editor of Time Magazine:

Dear Walter,

When will you acknowledge that we exist? Once again an entire "history" issue arrives that ignores the fact that during this same year millions and millions of gay men and lesbians live in the same world as all the heterosexuals Time Magazine writes about.

No acknowledgment of what has happened to us last year. No Matthew Shepard. No Hawaii. No Vermont. No Ellen. Nothing about AIDS. Two dozen new drugs reducing deaths. For you we don't exist. We don't contribute to the arts, to literature, to theater, to business, to movies.

There are no photos of us. Matthew Shepard nailed to a cross does not qualify for "Images 98."

Our news is simply not your news. You ostracize us utterly. Honestly, Walter, your magazine is wretchedly biased and unfair. There is no excuse for this to happen yet again, after we caught you the last time you put out one of these commemorative "jobs."

I am seriously considering passing the word around for a gay and lesbian boycott of your magazine.

Time is really not worth reading, for a gay or lesbian. Or advertising in.

How would you like it if you were treated like this?

Larry Kramer

UNDER THE DOME

New Congresswoman Emits Hope

Reporter Deb Price of The Detroit News wrote that our nation's capital is sinking ever deeper in the stagnant swamp of its own cynicism and destructiveness. Yet in that unlikely environment, something fresh, exciting and wonderfully encouraging has just begun to blossom. It's the national political career of Congresswoman Tammy Baldwin.

Sworn into office January 6, Baldwin gives all Americans a reason to feel good again about our representative democracy; a promising public servant has advanced to higher office based on the strength of her leadership, experience and vision. Voters in Wisconsin's 2nd House District refused to allow the fact that Baldwin is a lesbian to hold her back. At 36, Baldwin is the first gay member of Congress to come out before winning a first term. She is Congress' first uncloseted lesbian. Plus, she is the first woman whom her state has ever elected to Congress.

Baldwin, whose grin radiates optimism, is justifiably delighted that her triumph bolstered faith in our political system. "One thing I am most proud of is making people believe you can elect somebody who other people think can't win. Because this is a democracy. And in a democracy, we're the ones who decide what's possible," she says. Baldwin's victory is welcome evidence that there's no lasting limit to what openly gay Americans can achieve professionally. Every barrier will one day fall. But the significance of Baldwin's election to the House isn't that it inspires those of us who are gay. It offers encouragement to everybody who fears that some irrelevant characteristic, like race or religion, means a particular public office is out of their reach. If a lesbian can win a seat in Congress, a Hispanic boy can more easily dream of being president. An amazing 3,000 volunteers helped the Democratic Baldwin capture a House seat being vacated by a Republican. Quite a few were mothers or fathers who brought their daughters to see - as Baldwin puts it - "that every door can be open for them."

In coming to Washington, D.C., Baldwin moved from the fairly gay-friendly Wisconsin Legislature to a Congress led by far-right Republicans hostile to basic gay civil rights, such as protection against job discrimination. Yet, ironically, in Wisconsin, she was the only openly gay lawmaker, R-Ariz. She is new generation - two decades younger than Frank and Kolbe. Like any House freshman, Baldwin is busily adjusting. She plans to focus her energy on working full health coverage for all and improving education. She has landed seats on the budget committee as well as the judiciary committee, where Rep. Frank's impeachment performance showcased his intelligence and wit.

Baldwin is putting together a staff of 15, a tenfold increase for her. She hasn't figured out her Washington housing, so she's renting month-to-month. When back in Wisconsin, she lives with her partner of three years, environmental attorney Lauren Azar. There is bit of a rift, though -- their cats don't get along. The young and vivacious Baldwin likes being suited up for business. "When Lauren comes in from her job, she immediately sheds the pumps. She will look at me at 10 o'clock at night and say, 'Tammy, you are still wearing your dress suit.' And I'll say, 'I know. That's what I'm happy in,'" Baldwin says.

News of Baldwin's dramatic breakthrough is already helping to produce the next generation of gay officeholders, says Kathleen DeBold of the Victory Fund, which assists gay candidates. "We're already getting phone calls from young people in college saying, 'Can you help me? I want to run for office.' They are inspired by Tammy," DeBold explains. Helping revive the politics of hope is Tammy Baldwin's first act as a member of Congress. Info: letters@detnews.com ▼

California Senate Associates Positions Available

Applications are available for paid full-time positions in the California Senate Associates Program (formerly known as the California State Senate Fellows Program) which provides college graduates with full-time professional employment for eleven months in the Capitol office of a State Senator or a policy committee and graduate school credit. It is administered by the Center for California Studies at California State University, Sacramento. "The Senate Associates Program is a great way to learn about the legislative process and public policy in California," said Senator John Burton, Chair of the Senate Rules Committee. "The program provides valuable on-the-job training and an opportunity to help solve the problems facing California." Associates also participate in weekly academic seminars with Senators, senior staff members, journalists, lobbyists and state government officials. They receive 12 graduate credits from the Sacramento State Government Department for their academic work.

Anyone who has graduated from a university or four-year college by June, 1999, may apply. There is no preferred major, and there is no need to be a recent graduate. Individuals with advanced degrees are also urged to apply. Associates receive a stipend of $1,792 per month plus health and dental benefits. Those interested may get applications from the office of a State Senator or the Senate Rules Committee, State Capitol, Room 400, Sacramento, California 95814. Eighteen Associate positions are awarded in May. Awards are made after an initial screening of applications and a panel interview of semifinalists. The program begins in October, 1999. The deadline for submitting applications to the program is February 17, 1999. ▼

by Judy Ludwick
MGW/Staff

Rev. Merrill M. Follansbee, who conducted his first Holy Union ceremony for a same gender couple in 1984, was remembered by family, friends and members of the lesbian and gay community on January 16 at Westminster Presbyterian Church in downtown Sacramento. That afternoon, a few blocks away, across Capitol Park at the Convention Center Theater, Merrill's spirit and his legacy were evident at the Holy Union of Ellie Charlton and Jeanne Barnett.

From his respected position as the Assistant Pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church from 1982 to 1995, Rev. Follansbee co-founded and chaired, the Sacramento Chapter of Parents and Families and Friends of Lesbians and Gays (PFLAG). Merrill is remembered by those who knew him, including Ellie and Jeanne, as a man of faith, committed to the civil rights of all people.

He died on January 1 at the age of 81 after a distinguished career serving as pastor of several Presbyterian congregations in Corning, Pasadena, El Cerrito and Napa. A delegate to the White House Conference on Aging, Rev. Follansbee was honored by the River City Democratic Club in 1990 for dedication to advancing the lesbian and gay community.

Merrill and Muriel, his beloved wife of 50 years, co-founded PFLAG in 1982. He told them he was missed much of their son's life help other parents, families and formed a local chapter.

Jean Hansen, the other co-the personal experience of her that people need support during concerned that people would recalled. However, "I realized change, and I wanted to be part PFLAG, we work to face people's views when we can, in "People were able to hear hear someone else," Jean instrumental in changing area. Had he been able, Merrill Jeanne's Holy Union in his fundamentalists or the closeted personality. Early on at meetings, we had more fundamentalist counter-attacks and more parents dealing with their own religious dogma, and the schism between parent and child." Merrill was effective speaking about "what the Bible says and what the Bible does not say, and his personal testimony."

"I've seen gradual growth" in people's attitudes, in PFLAG. "If this is representative, I think PFLAG has helped bring about change," Dr. Green added.

Ellie Charlton and Jeanne Barnett, whose lesbian Holy Union made them the focus of national attention, met Merrill and Muriel Follansbee at a PFLAG meeting 16 years ago. When the schedule at First Methodist Church made it necessary for PFLAG to find another meeting place, Ellie and Jeanne arranged for the group to meet at St. Marks Methodist Church "as a mission activity" so there is no fee.

Sharing their experiences over the years, in the Methodist and Presbyterian churches respectively, Ellie and Jeanne, and Merrill and Muriel agreed that bringing about change within the church was "a long path but a path worth taking. It was unfortunate that the Memorial Service was on the sixteenth, but we felt he was with us in spirit."

Others have spoken about Merrill "always marching in the Gay Pride Parades in Sacramento, then in San Francisco... Appearing at the Capitol on behalf of lesbian, gay and other civil and human rights... Staffing the PFLAG booth at the Freedom Fair... "He always had the good thought..." Stephen Follansbee, in his eulogy at Westminster Methodist Church, said "our family enjoyed putting together jigsaw puzzles. We did the outside first, then sections outlining specific themes or ideas. Then the islands would become joined. Dad's life was like that puzzle and many of you are a piece of that puzzle."

"The challenge today," he continued, "is for all of us to do something different, now that the puzzle is complete. The way he lived his life empowers each of us to be a little kinder, a little gentler, a little more open, to study more. His life and his love remain intact for us. We each have the will to choose what we will do with his gifts."

Rev. Merrill M. Follansbee was always on top of GLBT support.

Domestic Violence in the Gay and Lesbian Community

The 3rd Annual Conference on Multicultural Family Violence Prevention will be in Sacramento on March 26-27. The Conference will explore the barriers, impact and success surrounding LGBT issues as they relate to domestic violence and violence experienced by children and youth.

The first panel will be about problems and barriers that LGBT victims face: distrust/fear/homophobia of law enforcement and service providers; lack of access to shelters for male and transgender victims; lack of sensitivity to needs and issues of lesbian/bisexual women at shelters; threatened outing by partner and/or accidental outing by service providers; language barriers and cultural issues; lack of support of family, friends and co-workers. Successful interventions currently in practice will be explored: strategies that have been implemented to overcome the problems and barriers listed above; innovative approaches that may include outreach, advocacy and/or re-organization of existing structures; replicable models that service providers can implement or adapt within their own organizations or communities.

The second panel will be about the impact of family violence directed at LGBT children and youth: family/cultural belief systems and dynamics that sanction emotional, verbal and physical abuse against LGBT youth; short and long term impact on children/youth; successful interventions and community resources that address the needs of LGBT children/youth (i.e., resources if a youth is disowned/evicted by family because of LGBT status); multicultural considerations - language barriers, cultural and religious beliefs, immigration status, the impact of multi-faceted oppression; effective and sensitive reporting strategies. PFLAG Is There For You

Parents, Families and Friends of Lesbians and Gays (PFLAG), which promotes health and well being of lesbians, gay men, and bisexual and transgendered persons, meets the third Tuesday of each month at St. Marks Presbyterian Church, St. Marks and Lusk Drive in Sacramento. Educational programs alternate with a quarterly "Rap Session" facilitated by Will Green, psychiatrist, from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. in the Fireside Room on the second floor of the educational complex.

The Sacramento Chapter, founded 17 years ago, has a Speakers Bureau and initiated its successful "Save A Life, Buy A Book" campaign five years ago. Prior to the inception of the Lambda Center's classes, PFLAG conducted "Coming Out" workshops.

The March 17 meeting will be a "Rap Session." Dr. Green, encouraging new parents and lesbians and gay men to attend, clarified, "this is not a therapy group, but I do consider them therapeutic experiences" for participants. "I have seen major transformation" in the lives of participants, in terms of coming out to their families and being open to themselves, he said. "Lesbians and gay men work through shame and guilt, to hear parents and friends say 'you're OK, and you bring specialness to my life.'"

PFLAG members - 70,000 of them in 400 communities in the United States and 11 other countries - promote health and well being through the following:

- Support, to cope with an adverse society;
- Education, to enlighten an ill-informed public; and
- Advocacy, to end discrimination and to secure civil rights.

Sacramento area PFLAG activities include the "Save A Life, Buy A Book" (SALBAB) campaign, which in the past five years has gathered donations to buy contemporary gay literature for area public libraries. PFLAG has gifted 12 complete sets of 10 or 11 books since its inception. Individual donations or in memory of Rev. Follansbee may be mailed c/o Sacramento PFLAG, P.O. Box 661855, Sacramento 95866.

For information about how to get involved in or support the local PFLAG effort, call Jean Hansen, Interim Co-Chair, at 916/489-3233, or call the Helpline at 916/978-0410. Information about national and international PFLAG can be accessed on the Internet, www.pflag.org.

Social and Sexual Taboos Fall in Cloud 9

Taboos are not often spoken of in polite society. They are instead left to fester and hide in the shadows. It is only when they are brought out in the open, however, that they can be examined and dealt with. This is the tact Caryl Churchill takes in her award winning play Cloud Nine being presented by the Lambda Players.

John Merrill, John David Rambo, Sonya Tunstall and Rebecca FaGalde in the Lambda Players' Cloud Nine, play at 8pm on February 5-20, at the 24th Street Theater, at 2791 24th Street. Info: 484-4742

"No punches are pulled in this raucously funny play where taboos are viewed from a wonderfully satirical and socially questioning eye," said Lambda Players Artistic Director Michael Jackson. "Set in Colonial Africa and modern day England, Cloud Nine looks at race relations, pedophilia, bi-sexual incest, homosexuality and adultery, bringing a uniquely British perspective and sense of humor to these issues." Cloud Nine is the third offering in The Lambda Players 10th Anniversary Season. It is being directed by Thomas Bach and features Sacramento actors John David Rambo, Maureen Gaynor, Rand Martin, John Merrill, Sonya Tunstall, Steve Buri and Rebecca FaGalde. Cloud Nine plays Fridays and Saturdays at 8pm, February 5-20 and will be performed at the 24th Street theatre, located at 2791 24th Street. Info: 484-4742.▼

Front Runners Run in the California International Marathon

by James Brown
MGW/Staff

To any runner completing a marathon is the ultimate achievement. And for Front Runners, Sacramento the list of runners who have participated in one or more of these twenty-six plus mile runs is enough to make our gay and lesbian community quite proud. Just this year alone close to twenty of us ran the California International Marathon right here in Sacramento.

Only a handful, Lisa Schamaun, BeeBee Laguana, and Dennis Gunvelson ran the Marathon solo. The remaining sixteen members of FrontRunners also ran the marathon, but did it in relay teams. It was a perfect compromise because almost any runner could participate in the whole marathon experience, as long as that runner could either successfully run a ten kilometer or the anchor twelve kilometer distance.

The California International Marathon brought out Frontrunners: Saul Arcos, Brien Lew, Nathan Schmidt, Leon

Training could be kept at a minimum and injury was much less likely. The first runner began the race sat the start up in Folsom and ran the equivalent of 6.2 miles to the first exchange position. At that pre-conceived exchange point runner number two takes over and runs his or her 6.2 mile leg, and so on until the last runner finishes his or her final seven mile distance to complete the race. One of our teams, FrontRunners 1, ran a very respectable 2:51:10 pace to come in eighth overall.

Running a marathon solo is the ultimate goal of any distance runner. But running a marathon as part of a relay team is equally rewarding, and with little of the accompanying pain and misery associated with the training regiment. And best of all, it allows a greater number of our members to participate.▼

American Gay Man Suffering From Amnesia Causes Sensation

James, as he is known, is certain that he is from the United States. But without papers, he is not allowed to cross the border. Gay Line, a Montreal base listening and referral service for gays, lesbians and bisexuals, is making a community appeal to queer media outlets in the United States to cover this anyone who recognizes him will help unlock the secret of his identity. James woke up beside a downtown Montreal dumpster in a deserted parking lot with no memory of how he got there or what country he was in. So far all attempts to find out his past have not resulted in uncovering any solid clues. The local gay newspaper in Montreal put out a notice in hopes that someone might be able to help with any useful information.▼

UCD Researcher Lauded

The Sacramento Bee reported tht UC Davis researcher, Gregory M. Herek, was among national, local figures and group rated in the annual World AIDS Day Report Card issued by the Lambda Legal Defense and Education Fund Inc. A research psychologist, Herek received an A for a study he presented in July at the World AIDS Conference in Geneva. The study found taht, despite increased AIDS information efforts, many Americans remain uncomfortable around people with the disease and have misconceptions about how it is spread. "Herek's study is a telling symptom o fthe large-scale failure of state and national public health officials to deal in a meaningful way with HIV prevention," said Lambda executive director Kevin McCathcart. The group also gave an A to then, Governor-elect Gray Davis for supporting fari policies toward people with HIV during his election campaign. Based in New York, Lambda advocates civil rights for gays, lesbians and people with HIV or AIDS. The group issued its report card in advance of World AIDS Day.▼

"Skylight" Runs Through February 7 at the Sacramento Theater Company

by Joanne Burkett
MGW/Staff

Time and politics have a way of changing people, rearranging their values and redirecting their passions—at least for one of the protagonists in David Hare's award-winning play, "Skylight," running through Feb. 7 at the Sacramento Theatre Company. Victor Pappas, associate artistic director of the Intiman Theatre of Seattle, ably directs a talented cast of three.

Kyra, played by Gina Nagy, put her six-year affair with her former married employer behind her nearly 20 years ago and has dedicated her life to teaching at a school deep in the slums of London. She hasn't seen her lover, Tom Sergeant, (Frank Corrado) since, and now, here is Tom's son (Cully Johnson) at her door, telling her of his mother's death the year before and begging her to return and save his distraught father from the despair he has fallen into. Shocked at his sudden appearance and disturbed more than she would like to admit, she refuses to commit herself, sending young Edward on his way. The memories remain.

The affair was a complicated arrangement. Teenaged Kyra admired Alice Sergeant, all the while falling in love and conducting a passionate affair with her husband, an exciting, self-made man with working class roots. But, then she went away, educated herself and threw herself into the job of saving young minds and here she is 20 years later, living neatly in near poverty in an apartment no one else wanted. But she feels fulfilled, useful.

Another knock, and here's Tom, filling her doorway, then pacing her modest, but neat apartment, soon beseeching her to come back, all the while polishing off the expensive bottle of whiskey he has brought as a gift. Swaggering, still charming. Aghast that Kyra can be so oblivious to the squalid environment and complete lack of material comforts she has chosen for others, she wonders. She pours herself another glass of wine and stirs the pot of spaghetti she's cooking. He pours yet another glass of whiskey. They himself. No working class life for him — he's now a well-heeled, middle-aged yuppie through and through and damned proud of it! Go with him and she, too, can have it all. Why does she want to waste herself and her talents on children who don't have a chance in hell of overcoming their environment, he asks. How can he be so self-centered, so given to the trappings of his wealth and oblivious to the suffering of banter, but the bites are deep. The drinks continue to flow. The conversation becomes more and more heated, kindling long-hidden feelings of betrayal as well as their pent-up passion for each other. It's the anger and the hopelessness, as well as the passion that propels them into the bedroom where they try to recapture the past. Does it work; can they sort through their differences? Can they put away the past, the guilt and the

Romeo and Juliet Produced in Three Bizarre Ways

Howard Zochlinski
MGW/Staff

The UC Davis Department of Theatre and Dance presented three variant performances of Shakespeare's Romeo & Juliet: an all-female cast version, an all-male cast version and a sexually mixed but gender appropriate version. They were done as a farce as opposed to drama. Let me now revert to my postmodern New York Jewish intellectual upbringing:

Shakespeare's plays, quite often, are not dramas as much as dramedys, designed to appeal to the mass audiences of their day. Like their modern counterparts - television programs such as Ally McBeal, Buffy the Vampire Slayer, or Xena - they include sex, gender confusion, violence, relationship problems and pain, ridicule and rebellion against authority and all the other matters that make life what it is. By re-casting in single sex mode, subtleties and themes can be revealed that might be missed if only the expected was presented. I was thus surprised that Mercutio's implied gay relationship with Romeo, something a same sex cast could have had a field day with in a farce, was ignored. However, the all-female cast obviously relished the opportunity to skewer male demeanor and macho banter. Their cuttngly deconstructive use of bladed weapons to emphasize the phallic posturing added much humor while scoring social points. The men playing the female roles in the all-male cast did not seem to attack their roles with equal relish, with one notable exception. Further deconstruction of social patriarchy was provided by having the women who played the male roles shorter than the men who played the male roles. Also, seeing it as a farce allowed one to see that the violence was precipitated by the young men and demanded by the older women (i.e. Juliet's mother), making violence seem to be all a matter of relative testosterone level.

As to individual performances, Hillary Dupuis as Tybalt had all the stage presence of Birgit Nielsen at her most imposing. While lacking two of Nielsen's most notable attributes (Re: Helmut Newton's 1987 photo of Nielsen at the Hotel Hermitage, Monte Carlo) Dupuis does possess one that Nielsen sorely lacks - she can act - and that is an attribute that can't be implanted! But then, perhaps I'm biased by spending too much time at all the right, or wrong depending on your morality, clubs in New York (e.g. Mother and Meow Mix on Xena Nite) and thinking how much she reminds me of performance artist Marianne a.k.a. Evil Cave Boy. Also enjoyable were Alexandra Tavares and Brian Montagnese, both of whom played Mercutio in their respective casts. A pivotal role, they both attacked it with humor and drama in nicely balanced form. Tel Hertzog as Benvolio was a scene stealer, with a flare for expressing understated sarcasm. Finally, Brian Rodda is notable for having played Lady Capulet with relish - as a drag queen diva. If he ever gets to New York, he can be assured a position - at Lips or La Nouvelle Justine at the very least.▼

Yucatan Blue and Other Dances Performs Benefit for Breast Cancer

ABD Productions presents Yucatan Blue and Other Dances, an evening of works by Anne Bluethenthal & Dancers, February 5 at the Dance Mission Theatre, 3316- 24th Street at Mission in San Francisco.

Yucatan Blue and Other Dances is presented in memory of physician and activist Marcy Lee Olmstead, who recently died after a seven-year battle with breast cancer. The first is Bluethenthal's featured premiere, a quintet. The latter is a short and playful collaborative duet choreographed and performed by Bluethenthal and Mercy Sidbury. The concert will also present Bluethenthal's solo In My Bones (from Excavations of the Spirit) and Broken Open (2nd and 3rd "chambers" from The Heart is a Live Thing). A reception following Friday's performance is co-hosted by ABD and the Breast Cancer Fund. Broken Open, set to Marc Ream's "luminous and propulsive" score (Rita Felciano, SF Bay Guardian), has three layers of narrative: the physical heart - a description of open heart surgery; the spiritual heart - when on a spiritual path, one must allow the heart to be broken open; and the emotional heart - the heart as an object and symbol of love.

Anne Bluethenthal is founder and Artistic Director of Anne Bluethenthal and Dancers. Winner of the SF Bay Guardian's 1996 Goldie Award for Dance, she has been choreographing and performing in the Bay Area since she arrived in 1982. Bluethenthal, with Krissy Keefer, founded and directs the San Francisco Lesbian & Gay Dance Festival. She has taught her dance technique at Rhythm and Motion Studio in San Francisco. Bluethenthal is certified by both the North American and London Societies for Teachers of the Alexander Technique and her writing on dance and the Alexander Technique was published in 1998 in the book Curiosity Recaptured. When you roam the by-ways of life and Sacramento, you sometimes spot a jewel in the rough... I did just that at The Bolt where recently I experienced Sacramento's only Levi-Leather environment. With Tom at the helm and a host of various-clad men about 25 years and up working the bar, I found my hand, literally, in the peanut jar. Daily supplies of fresh roasted peanuts are added to the barrel to feed the masses.

If that isn't enough, they do the giant hot dogs on Monday's and after hours 2-3 A.M. weekends and the best Pasta with Salad and Bread Wednesday nights for only $2.00! Weekly it varies from authentic spaghetti and meatballs, lasagna or ziti bake

(a personal favorite with all that Italian sausage) 6 P.M. until it's gone...

So after 2 P.M., seven days a week stop in, enjoy pool, darts, video games, in the subdued atmosphere that is designed for cruising. The Oak bar and its' granite top add the touch draft glasses and pitchers seem to enjoy sitting on. There are some mighty good draft beers, not usually available everywhere. Liquor flows in mugs too (no foo-foo here).

When you need a break from the maddening crowd, there is always a fire in the pit outback where smoking is allowed for you... Call them at 649-8420 and see whether it's the Valley Bears (a great group), the Leather Association, or some worthy cause doing a special night, in which all monies (not a percentage) at the door go to the sponsoring party. There is plenty of off-street parking if you get there before the crowd and they sport two guards on weekends. The Bolt, a must for the man in your house...

For suggested recipes, ideas, or restaurants that you think should be reviewed, please forward your suggestions to:

Ken, Randy, Tom, Joseph and guests have a blast at The Bolt

There are some gift items available for the hard-to-please, see Chuck on weekends and Tom mid-week.

Woman Guilty in Aiding Murder of Shepard

A 20-year-old girlfriend of one of two men charged in the slaying of gay college student Matthew Shepard pleaded guilty to being an accessory after the fact to first-degree murder.

Chasity Vera Pasley is one of two women accused of helping Aaron McKinney and Russell Henderson dispose of bloody clothing worn by Henderson.

Prosecutors said Pasley's plea was not the result of an agreement for a reduced sentence, though she will be called as a witness if the case against the other defendants goes to trial. She will be sentenced in about 45 days. Henderson's trial is to begin March 22. McKinney's trial was set for August 9. Both men are charged with first-degree murder, aggravated robbery and kidnapping with intent to inflict bodily injury or to terrorize the victim.▼

Arkansas Bans GLBT Foster Parents

The Child Welfare Agency Review Board of Arkansas passed a resolution, which bans GLBT people from serving as foster parents. At this point, a comment period is in effect, during which five public hearings will be held. At the end of this, which may take a number of weeks, the ban will become effective. The passage of this measure makes Arkansas the third state to prevent GLBT people from acting as foster parents and/or adopting, joining New Hampshire, Florida and Oklahoma. Info: (415) 861-5437▼

Tales of Intolerance Surprise Denver Board

The Denver school board promised to protect gays and lesbians after being surprised by tales of intolerance in schools. Paul Cameron of Larkspur threatened a lawsuit, saying: "You are about to further the interests of the gay movement." Cameron added that "scientific literature" proves that gay teachers are more likely to have sexual relations with students. His attitude and words were not welcome. "I find what you said totally reprehensible," board member Elaine Berman said. "I have no problem promoting gay rights. Members of a district gay and lesbian task force told of slurs, assaults and threats. The district already prohibits discrimination based on sexual orientation in most policies and practices. The task force wants those protections as well as gender identity in all student and employee policies.▼

Denver Schools to Consider GLBT Rights

The Denver Public Schools heard testimony from teachers and students about discrimination they had suffered based on sexual orientation as the board considered adopting an anti-discrimination measure that would cover sexual orientation and gender identity. Republican legislators in Arizona are seeking to bring a bill which would ban public school groups youth and their straight supporters ("Gay/Straight Alliances" or GSAs) from Arizona schools. A bill similar to this measure was presented to the legislature two years ago, but died before a vote was taken. If Arizona votes to ban the clubs, they risk losing their federal education funding, due to their violation of the federal Equal Access Act. Info: (212) 727-0135 janderson@glsen.org▼

Australian's Feel Harassment

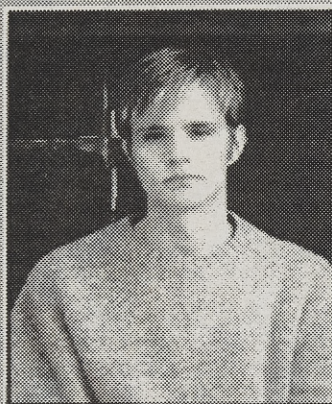

Twenty-Seven gay men and lesbians have experienced harassment or violence in the past 12 months, according to the results of the Sydney Star Observer's readers survey. The survey revealed that just under half (45.8 percent) of respondents experienced violence or harassment because they were thought to be gay or lesbian. More than one in 15 respondents said they had been physically assaulted in the last 12 months. Across the Star's entire readership, the figures indicate more than 24,000 residents were verbally harassed and 3,500 residents were physically assaulted.▼

Providence Gay Man Beat As He Left Bar

Two men have been charged with what Mayor Vincent A. Cianci Jr. called the worst hate crime in the city since the new statute covering crimes was enacted this summer. David E. Sheldon, 19, and Taylor Grenier, 18, were charged with assault under the new Hate Crime Sentencing Act. The law requires judges to sentence offenders to all least 30 days in jail. They were stopped at a traffic light when they spotted a man leaving Wheels, a gay and lesbian bar. Sheldon and Grenier allegedly yelled homophobic slurs at the man, Diana Obidowski, jumped out of the car, ran after him and knocked him down, kicked him in the head and ribs. He got up and fled, but was knocked down again. Sheldon and Grenier kicked and punched Obidowski in the face again. Rhode Island recorded 44 hate crimes last year, included 25 in Providence.▼

West Hollywood Honors Shepard

The West Hollywood City Council voted to name a landscaped traffic median Matthew Shepard Square. Actually triangular in shape, the strip is in a prominent and heavily-trafficked area of "the gay city," at the intersection of Santa Monica and Crescent Heights Boulevards. Mayor Gary Doty of Duluth, Minnesota is taking quite a different view of Shepard's murder by refusing to sign a commendation to a local group for its Matthew Shepard memorial event. The Duluth Human Rights Commission had voted to award the certificate to the GLBT Alliance of the University of Minnesota, for having staged an October vigil and speak-out against hate violence. Doty said, "I will not celebrate somebody's sexual practices, and I won't sign something that thanks somebody for celebrating their sexual practices."▼

San Antonio Reports Sixth Stabbing

A 22-year-old man was stabbed in the back outside a downtown gay bar, The Saint, when he was approached by three men who, police say, stabbed him in the lower back as he was getting into his car. Police said the assailants then attacked two witnesses about to get into their vehicles in the parking lot. One of the witnesses, a 36-year-old man, suffered a 6-inch cut to his right cheek. The 22-year-old was treated and released. San Antonio's gay leaders assailed the stabbing and said the number of violent attacks against gays and lesbians is higher than what's reported to police. In 1993, Gov. Ann Richards signed legislation that increases punishment for hate-motivated crimes that target a victim's race, religion, ethnicity, sexual orientation or national origin. Last year, eight cases of possible hate crimes were reported to the San Antonio Police Department.▼

Cabbie Slammed Over Slurs

A judge revoked a New York City cab driver, Walter Rodriguez's license and fined him $1,000 for shouting racist and homophobic slurs at two women and then repeatedly ramming Kacia McCowen and Tammy Peays' car. McCowen and Peay said they were driving east on 10th Street in Manhattan when Rodriguez, who was driving a cab behind them, started honking and gesturing violently. He then yelled racial and homophobic epithets, calling them "dirty bitches" and "black dykes." He then began ramming the back of their car 11 times. Peay said that the event was so traumatic for them that they are now in counseling.▼

Jury Slaps City

A Washington D.C. Court ordered the city to pay $2.9 million to the mother of Tyrone "Tyra" Hunter, who died from injuries suffered in an August 1995 car wash. The jury found that the D.C. Fire Department rescue worker violated Hunter's civil rights, and caused physical and emotional pain, when he stopped treating Hunter's injuries and began shouting insults at Hunter because of his transgendered status. Witnesses testified the rescue worker who cut open Hunter's pants to treat an injured leg laughed and shouted derisive remarks when he discovered that Hunter, who had the outward appearance of a woman, had male genitals. Hunter, 24, died from injuries sustained from the car crash. The jury also found that Dr. Joseph Bastien, an emergency room physician committed medical malpractice by failing to provide "standard of care" treatment.▼

Teacher Comes Out to His Class

Wiley Reeves, 43, of Salinas, said he "came out" to the 5th grade class to make a point about respecting people regardless of their differences. An avalanche of negative comments has not rained down on Reeves since he made the announcement in November, but two students were taken out of the class by their parents and the district superintendent said it was not appropriate for fifth-graders. Reeves, a teacher for 12 years, informed District Superintendent Gene Martin and Gabilan Principal Trinie Rodriguez before telling the class that he is gay. Rodriguez was present when Reeves told the class, but she referred comments to Martin. "It wasn't appropriate for the grade level," Martin said, "but teachers have rights. It was allowed because people have the right to exercise freedom of speech."▼

"Being Gay is a Biological Error," Says Dr. Laura

Author Claudett Wilcoson has just published Ten Stupid Things Dr. Laura Tell Women To Do To Mess Up Their Lives. As you've surmised, this is not a shot across the bow of Dr. Laura Schlessinger, the host of a national radio "advice" show - this book is a declaration of war! And she is presently working on the second edition that will include a chapter about Dr. Laura's statement that "Being gay is a biological error." It will also deal with Dr. Laura's beliefs that a gay couple should not be allowed to adopt a child or be legally married. If you or anyone you know would like to have some input in the book, contact the author at spearl@thegrid.net or fax 760-361-0068. The author has her own anti-Doc web site but now has expanded that to expound in greater detail via the printed page. Using radio transcripts as well as some past events of Dr. Schlessinger's apparently well-ordered life, the author focuses on what she considers to be the contradictory counsel often given to the show's listeners, and the apparent hypocrisy of Dr. Laura's moral posture. Nor is this just one writer's private tirade against a public figure: this book incorporates many letters to the author's web site. Wilcoson lives in 29 Palms, California. Her web site (entitled "Dr. Laura Is Wrong") receives 200 to 300 'hits' her day on its topic of Dr. Laura. The author also wishes to announce that Dr. Laura has been awarded the "1997 Tacky Taste" award by cyber-readers of "E! Online."▼

If Only 100 People Were Living

If the earth's population was shrunk to a village of 100 people, with all the existing human ratios remaining the same, it would look like this:

- 57 Asians
- 21 Europeans
- 14 from the Western Hemisphere (north and south)
- 8 Africans
- 52 would be female
- 48 would be male
- 70 would be non-white
- 30 white
- 70 would be non-Christian
- 30 would be Christian
- 89 would be heterosexual
- 11 homosexual
- 59% of the entire world's wealth would be in the hands of only 6 people and all 6 would be citizens of the United States
- 80 would live in substandard housing
- 70 would be unable to read
- 50 would suffer from malnutrition
- 1 would be near death
- 1 would be near birth
- 1 would have a college education
- 1 would own a computer

When one considers the world from such a compressed perspective, the need for both acceptance and understanding becomes glaringly apparent.▼

Gardening Notes Before Valentine's Day

by Bob Hamm
MGW/Staff

With the bustle of the holiday season, one of the most important days of the gardening year passes with little notice on December 21st. This is the Winter Solstice when the sun (in the Northern Hemisphere) reaches its lowest point; it is the shortest day of the year. After December 21st the days start getting longer and while the calendar may say it starts winter, biologically it is really the start of spring, especially in warmer climates like ours.

Within a couple of weeks many plants react to the longer days by starting growth even if only underground (roots) where we don't see it. By late January many plants start to grow visibly. In Sacramento by mid-to-late February we have blooming trees, shrubs, bulbs and growth bursting out everywhere.

Hybrid roses start braking growth very early in the New Year. This is why the rose pruning season (hybrids) runs from Christmas through Valentines Day. But Valentines is often late with plants with 6" shots - so prune as early as possible. Moving perennial plants should be done as early as possible. January and February are prime months. Many perennials can be divided now, before they make much growth. Most fruit trees, such as peach, apple, pear, apricot, etc., should be pruned now although flowering forms of the above (grown for flowers not fruit) are best pruned right after blooming. ▼

Dealing With Frost Damage

There are several things you need to be aware of in dealing with hard freeze damage.

- DO NOT rush to clean up frosted/frozen foliage and stems. They will help to protect basal growth from further freezing.
- DO NOT assume a plant is dead simply because it froze to the ground. Many plants will recover from below ground once we get warmer spring weather.
- DO keep plants moist; dryness will only increase freeze damage.
- Many potted perennials can be frozen solid and still recover. Don't rush to throw them away!

A Joyful Noise...And History Is Made!

On Saturday, January 16th 1200 people gathered in the theater at Sacramento's Convention Center to celebrate the service of Holy Union of Jeanne Barnett and Ellie Charlton. Among the 1200 were 90 Methodist ministers who risked being punished by their church for officiating at any service uniting a same sex couple. Outside, a cordon of others circled the theater to assure that no one bent on disturbing the event would be allowed to enter.

During the nearly two hour celebration lesbian and gays in the audiences were invited to stand and approximately a third of the audience rose. Those who remained seated applauded loudly. Among those who stood were most, if not all, members of DIVA (Diverse Individuals Vocalizing Affirmatively), the impressive choir which joined with member of United Methodist Church choirs to sing "This Is the Day of New Beginning" and "In This Very Room."

The titles of those two numbers characterized the entire historic event for in the very room of the Sacramento Convention Center there was a new beginning of organized resistance to anti-gay attitudes in Christian churches by church members and ministers.

Rev. Don Fado, who presided, former minister Randy Miller, and Rev. Dr. Jeanne Knepper each spoke of the need for their church to accept sexual diversity as it has in the past moved to accept racial and ethnic diversity. Miller, who is gay and African-American, recalled that he was often asked why, if he didn't like his church's views of homosexuality, he didn't just get out? His answer was that just as a Black man he had a right to expect to be welcomed as a Methodist, so too, he had that right as a gay man.

Whether this joyful event will have any significant impact on the action of the United Methodist Church or on Protestant Christianity at large, there can be no question of the impact it had on the thousand people who witnessed the event, they will remember the day forever.

More than 1,000 filled the Convention Center. At one point, gay and straight people were asked to stand. Approximately 60% were straight and about 30% were gay.

Sister, Sister

by Stefan Grunwedel
MGW/Staff

Hilary and Jackie. Starring Emily Watson, Rachel Griffiths, David Morrissey, and James Frain. Directed by Anand Tucker. (121 min., rated R)

Hilary and Jacqueline du Pré have the kind of childhood that girls hope for. They are sisters who are also best friends and have ample time to play and dream together about sharing everything with each other, forever and ever.

They are stars in their world of play and musicianship. Hilary plays the flute and Jackie the cello. Soon, however, their natural talents lead them to enter contests. Though Hilary and Jackie sometimes win together, it is inevitable that one will surpass the other in practical skill and natural ability—yanking them both from their innocent little world and thrusting them into the reality of sibling rivalry and fickle praise.

Hilary and Jackie tells the dramatic, true-life story of two musically gifted sisters who grow up wanting the same thing, yet find it in vastly different ways.

It apparently all begins with young Hilary (charmingly played by Keeley Flanders), whose gifted flute playing wins her admiration from her parents and teacher—as well as some prizes. Jackie (gracefully played by Auriol Evans) realizes she has to play her instrument better if she is not to go unnoticed. So she quickly excels at her cello, soon outpacing her sister in accolades and awards.

Not only is her technique superior, but her expressiveness while playing belies an emotional maturity and musical understanding not seen in most performers her age. As Emily Watson, the actress who brilliantly portrays the adult Jackie, observed in an interview,

"She was so in tune with the music that she played with her whole body."

Later, as an adult, Hilary (Griffiths) struggles with her music lessons at the university. However, she does not go unnoticed. One student studying conducting, Kiffer Finzi (played with much enthusiasm by Morrissey), spies her in the musician and conductor in his own right.

Despite these two sisters' similarities, their lives couldn't end up more differently. As Hilary and Daniel dash around the world from concert to concert—sometimes together, sometimes apart—Jackie and Kiffer plant roots in the country and raise children.

the story. She falls in love with Kiffer. Jackie comes home from touring and appears jealous of his presence in her life. Later, after many more celebrated concerts abroad, Jackie visits Hilary and Kiffer in the country and wedges herself between them. As girls they'd always promised to share everything, Jackie says, so now she wants consummated because of all their separate globetrotting. Finally she wants to taste Hilary's simple life in the countryside, and she arrives (very likely) sex-starved at her house. But her solution for her anguish drives Hilary away from her.

Thus Jackie's loneliness continues, which fuels her hatred for her fame and lot in life. To her, she and Daniel are just trained freaks. Audiences don't love them; they just love their music—as long as they can keep playing it for them.

As fate has it, Jackie isn't able to play for audiences very long. At 28, she is diagnosed with multiple sclerosis. While this may explain her wildly erratic emotional behavior, it doesn't bode well for her musical career. Indeed, it wipes it out within a few years.

This ironically tragic turn of events naturally brings Hilary closer to Jackie once again.

It probably goes without saying that Hilary and Jackie reveals some of the heartaches that classical musicians endure as they strive to reach the top of their careers. While the loneliness and stress of solo performing is briefly touched on here, it is clear that this life is not one to wish for carelessly. The film shows that, despite her fame, Jackie is immensely unhappy with her choice of musical career—even though Daniel observes that she wouldn't be herself without her cello.

The film becomes somewhat simplistic when it seems to suggest that all that Jackie needs to be happy is love. She clearly needs more than that—probably starting with some therapy.

Even so, this is a minor quibble. The film remains engrossing and entertaining.

Hilary and Jackie plays at the Tower Theater. For more information about show times, call the theater. To read production notes and hear some music from the film, visit the official film site at www.octoberfilms.com/hilary-jackie.

halls, admires her playing, and books her immediately for his own concerts.

He also falls in love with her. By the time Jackie returns home from some concerts abroad, she may enjoy the celebrity that Hilary can only wish for, but she doesn't enjoy the love of a man that Hilary does every day.

Luckily for Hilary, it would seem, she soon finds love too: in the form of Daniel Barenboim (Frain), who is a celebrated

While this story would be interesting enough to carry a movie, An and Tucker's direction and Frank Cottrell Boyce's screenplay do one step better by leaving the bare facts open to interpretation. Like the classical music that appears throughout the movie, the movie has movements and a certain rhythm that sustains it to its inevitable coda.

First comes Hilary's side of Hilary to share Kiffer with her. Hilary reluctantly complies, though not for long. Soon Jackie must leave for good.

After this comes Jackie's side of the story. Naturally, key scenes depicted before appear differently the second time around. Jackie is very lonely touring from place to place. She doesn't speak the local language and admirers are too shy to engage her in more than just polite conversation. All she really wants is to be nearest her sister. When she comes home, however, Hilary is preoccupied with someone else. For awhile, she finds comfort in her own new love, Daniel (whom she eventually marries), but their marriage is apparently rarely

HOW MANY S'S IN HOLLYWOOD

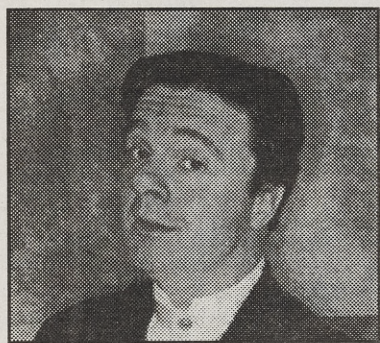

Munching on a Full Monty

by Gerald Semas

FILM

Director Antonia Bird gained international recognition with her controversial film Priest and her next film, Ravenous will certainly add to that notoriety. The 20th Century Fox film is the story of 8 people, stuck in a snowbound Sierra Nevada fort in 1847, while a cannibalistic killer waits outside. You might call it 'I Know What the Donner Party Did Last Summer'. The cast includes Guy Pearce (The Adventures of Priscilla, Queen of the Desert), Jeremy Davies, David Arquette (Johns) and Robert Carlyle (The Full Monty). ▼▼▼

At the end of the year, Carlyle will be seen as Renard, an ex-French legionnaire turned terrorist in the next James Bond film The World is Not Enough. A special attribute of this arch-nemesis is his ability to withstand pain resulting from a bullet lodged in his brain. Filming began last month on this 19th Bond film which features Pierce Brosnan returning as 007, Denise Richards (Starship Troopers) as the latest Bond Girl, 'Monty Python' alumnus John Cleese as a bumbling assistant to gadget master Q and Norwegian body builder, Victor Ashby as a hunky henchman named The Boa. Somehow, I think a feathered fashion accessory is not what the producers have in mind. ▼▼▼

Their teaming on the critically acclaimed Gods and Monsters was enough to make them continue that relationship for another project. Author/producer Clive Barker and director Bill Condon are pursuing, as they call it, a Gay horror movie. I thought anything produced by Alan Carr since Grease was considered a Gay horror movie. ▼▼▼

On to a Carr of another kind. Author Caleb Carr (The Alienist) has been hired for his re-write talents on the upcoming film The In Between. The story deals with a father who discovers the terrifying consequences of cheating death after saving his son. Carr recently touched up the script for the film The Chill Factor starring As Good As It Gets alumni Skeet Ulrich and Cuba Gooding Jr. ▼▼▼

The new independent film Jump features appearances by Harvey Fierstein, Hal Linden, Molly Ringwald, Roger Rees and Ione Skye. The story surrounds a group of people who reevaluate their lives while trying to convince a New Yorker not to jump off a building edge. Yes, you read that right, residents of the Big Apple actually trying to convince a suicidal man NOT to jump. ▼▼▼

Oscar-winner Helen Hunt (As Good As It Gets) will co-star with Tom Hanks (Philadelphia) in the upcoming film Cast Away. If you'll stop that annoying song about a three-hour tour I can tell you that Hanks will portray a workaholic who is stuck on a desert island for four years with Hunt playing his girlfriend. ▼▼▼

Christina Ricci (The Opposite of Sex) joins Paul Rudd (The Object of My Affection) this month's release 200 Cigarettes. Of course in California, theatre marquees will call it '200 Cancer Causing Tobacco Tubes'. The story follows a group of people on New Year's Eve 1981 and co-stars Courtney Love, Janeane Garofalo, Ben Affleck and his brother Casey, Jay Mohr, and Kate

Hudson (Goldie Hawn's daughter.) ▼▼▼

Yes, she's still around and going strong. Moss Hart widow, Kitty Carlisle Hart will perform her one-woman show My Life on the Wicked Stage at the Berger Arts Center in Tuscon, AZ. The one time Valentine's night benefit is presented as part of the Invisible Theatre's 1998/99 season. ▼▼▼

B.D. Wong (And The Band Played On) steps into the title role of You're A Good Man Charlie Brown when the revival opens Feb. 4th at N.Y.'s Ambassador Theater. Now if they got Wong's Father of the Bride co-star Martin Short to play Snoopy, this could be worthwhile. ▼▼▼

Some call it theatre, I call it making a quick buck. Jeff Stryker stars in Jeff Stryker Does Hard Time opening Feb. 11 at S.F.'s Victoria Theatre. The piece, written by Sean Michael, comes to the Bay Area after a November run at St. Genesius Theatre in West Hollywood. Bring your latex toys and maybe you can get an autograph. ▼▼▼

The ever-talented Betty Buckley stars in Nicky Silver's latest play, The Eros Trilogy coming to N.Y.'s Vineyard Theatre Feb. 4 - 27. Also in the cast are T. Scott Cunningham, who was previously seen in a production of Silver's Pterodactyls and Zak Orth (In and Out). Buckley fans can catch a performance of the star at the Bob Hope Cultural Center in Palm Desert, CA on Feb. 6th. ▼▼▼

Todd Oldham is the designer behind the original costumes for a new live production of The Rocky Horror Show playing at L.A.'s Tiffany Theatre. Is this a career move up? The man just put his name on a specially designed Barbie Doll. Could designer thongs be next for the Billy and Carlos dolls? ▼▼▼

If all goes according to plan, the new Stephen Sondheim musical Wise Guys could have it's Broadway premiere by the end of the year. The recently out (was anyone surprised) Nathan Lane and Victor Garber (The First Wives Club) are scheduled to star in this vaudeville-style biography about the eccentric Mizner brothers, Wilson and Addison. Scott Rudin (In and Out) joins Roger Berlind as the show's producers. ▼▼▼

TELEVISION

NBC has the proven magic of producer Robert Halmi Sr. (The Odyssey & Gulliver's Travels) behind it's Feb. 28th Tele-blockbuster Alice In Wonderland. This latest version of Lewis Carroll's fantasy features Merlin alumni Miranda Richardson and Martin Short with newcomer Tina Majorino as Alice and Gene Wilder as the Mock Turtle. ▼▼▼

BS airs And The Beat Goes On: The Sonny and Cher Story on Feb. 22. The tele-film is based on Bono's book and stars Jay Underwood (Superman) as Sonny and Renee Faia (A Few Good Men) as Cher. Something tells me that the broadcast will not be sponsored by any ski resorts. ▼▼▼

Another bio-film on the Eye network is Too Rich: The Secret Life of Doris Duke airing Feb. 21 & 22. Lauren Bacall stars as the heiress whose troubled life was never completely eased by her immense fortune. Richard Chamberlain plays her butler who inherited the bulk of her fortune upon her suspicious death. Based on his early career playing a member of the medical profession you could call him Dr. Killed-her! ▼▼▼

It's time to cut a rug and take a spin. The U.S. Figure Skating Championship airs on ABC Feb. 13th at 9pm while the Championship Ballroom Dancing Competition is broadcast on PBS Feb. 10th at 8:30pm. Though described as the world's largest collection of Gay men and straight women duos under one roof, this IS Ballroom Dancing, not a convention of Wil and Grace fans. ▼▼▼

Rosie O'Donnell is the host for the 41st annual Grammy Awards airing on CBS on Feb. 24th. Comforted that her buddy is hosting and despite appearing on Mr. Blackwell's worst dressed list, Madonna has agreed to perform at the event. ▼▼▼

Eric Roberts (It's My Party) plays Ben 'Bugsy' Siegel to Richard Dreyfuss' Meyer Lansky in the HBO film Lansky airing Feb. 27th. ▼▼▼

A&E has picked a provocative title for their Feb. 22 biography on the real Annie Oakley. It's being promoted as Annie Oakley: Crack Shot in Petticoats. Wasn't that the name of Anna Nicole Smith's first adult film? ▼▼▼

Gay producers Neil Meron and Craig Zadan, the forces behind the planned HBO bio-film on Harvey Milk are the same producers who brought us the TV musical version of Cinderella which starred Brandy and Whitney Houston. ▼▼▼

Ellen DeGeneres (Ellen), Tracey Ullman (Tracey Takes On...) and Lisa Kudrow (Friends) are among the nominees for the 13th annual American Comedy Awards being handed out Feb. 7th but broadcast on the FOX Network in March. ▼▼▼

Victor/Victoria stars Julie Andrews and James Garner are together again, this time filming A Winter Visitor in Montreal for CBS. ▼▼▼

End Quote

"We've never catered to the Gay community. I'm so tired of Judy Garland and show tunes and disco being shoved down our throats as 'Gay Music'. It's like, here's your gay fare and your Donna Summer tune, now memorize it!"

Anne Heche and Billie Jean King Honored

Actress Anne Heche and tennis legend Billie Jean King will be honored at the L.A. Gay & Lesbian Center's Women's Night '99 on Saturday, March 6. The event will take place at the Beverly Hilton Hotel, and is expected to attract more than 1,000 women and raise more than $300,000 for women's services. Heche will be honored with the Creative Integrity Award and King will receive the Community Role Model Award. Local lesbian/bisexual activists will also be honored with the fifth annual LACE (Lesbian and bisexual women Active in Community Empowerment) Awards.

Heche has unfailingly and openly acknowledged her relationship with Ellen DeGeneres, in spite of entertainment industry homophobia and much-hyped speculation about how it would affect her career. Now considered one of Hollywood's best and brightest young talents, Heche has starred in a number of major motion pictures, including the remake of Psycho; Six Days, Seven Nights; Return to Paradise; Volcano; Donnie Brasco; The Juror; Walking and Talking; and Wag the Dog, for which she was honored with the National Board of Review's Award for Best Supporting Actress. She is also an Emmy Award winner, taking honors for her role in the daytime serial "Another World".

Billie Jean King is honored by L.A.'s Gay and Lesbian Center

King is regarded as one of the all-time greats in the world of women's tennis. Currently serving as director and spokesperson for World Team Tennis, King has been a longtime advocate of women's rights, women in athletics, and now, lesbian and gay issues. King has also created a foundation which will, among other things, support lesbian and gay youth. During her heyday as the world's top women's tennis player, King amassed a record 20 Wimbledon titles in singles and doubles, and won every Grand Slam singles title. In 1973, King defeated Bobby Riggs in the much-heralded "Battle of the Sexes" match, which still holds the attendance record for a single tennis match.

Proceeds from Women's Night go toward women's services at the L.A. Gay & Lesbian Center, including the Audre Lorde Lesbian Health Clinic, L.A.'s first non-profit health clinic specifically to provide basic preventative gynecological care to lesbians and bisexual women. Other women's services include the Lesbian Law Project, counseling, youth, employment, educational, cultural and social programming.

Past Women's Night honorees include Ellen DeGeneres, Sheila Kuehl, U.S. Senator Carol Moseley-Braun, k.d. lang, Dr. Susan Love, the Indigo Girls, Linda Villarosa, Melissa Etheridge and Martina Navratilova. Info: (310) 996-1188. ▼

PET PRIDE

Local Pet Entrepreneurs Talk About Travel on Fox News

Kim Christoffersen, Sacramento co-owner of TravelDog, an Internet resource for people who travel with their dogs, was a featured guest on "Pet News," a national, cable television show broadcast on Fox News Channel. According to Diane Dushai, producer at "Pet News," "TravelDog has emerged at precisely the right time and is meeting a great need among the growing numbers of pet owners who don't want to leave their dogs behind when they vacation." TravelDog receives 800 to 1,000 hits to its website each day (<http://www.traveldog.com>) from people who are hungry for information about traveling with their dogs. TravelDog provides a nationwide directory (listed by state) of overnight accommodations that welcome dogs such as motels, hotels, cabins, bed and breakfast, beach houses and vacation resorts. TravelDog also provides an online travel agency that can book accommodations and travel arrangements.

"Getting information about pet-friendly accommodations is the number one reason people visit our website," says Kim Christoffersen, co-owner of TravelDog. "But there's a lot involved in traveling with a dog and when people discover that they can also access information about beaches, dog parks and camps, kennels, veterinarians, pet sitters, pet transport, travel tips and doggy daycare facilities—they start relying on us for all their pet-related travel needs."

TravelDog was established in 1996 by Christoffersen and Delfin who also own K.J. Paws, a East Sacramento pet grooming salon. Info: www.traveldog.com ▼

Wild Thing, I Think I Love You

Prince (the cat formerly known as) extends a shaven love embrace to an aptly named black cat Nightie. Prince is 10 years old and has a penchant for water torture, preferring to drink his daily dose from the tub faucet after it has sufficiently dripped on his head. Nightie is 8 years old and has a taste for toy mouse tails and endless tummy rubbing. They cohabitate with the additional furry feline mugs of Tate and Lila Jane and the upright likes of Gale Hart and Lisa Parker.

Pet Facts: Did YOU Know...

Courtesy of the Sacramento SPCA

In the U.S. 64% of animals arriving at shelters are euthanized (put to sleep). Americans spent $10 billion on dog & cat food in 1997. 25% of dog caregivers keep a snapshot of their animal in their purse or wallet. Your expense as a caregiver to a dog for its 11-year life span now equals $13,350. In 1997, 56% of all American households had a companion animal. These included:

- 54.2 million dogs
- 59.4 million cats
- 16 million birds
- 12.2 million smaller animals (hamsters, gerbils)
- 7.3 million reptiles
- 4.6 million fish

There is a clear link between animal abuse and domestic violence. In a 1995 survey, 4 out of 5 victims of domestic violence in homes with companion animals said their pets were also abused.

Prevent Garbage Gut!

People who think the compost heap is a garbage dump can cause their dogs a heap of trouble, according to the toxicologists at the Cornell University College of Veterinary Medicine Diagnostics Laboratory. Meat, dairy products and other non-vegetable waste create bad compost and potentially life-threatening situations for dogs who love to root in the garbage. The Cornell lab sees dogs suffering from "garbage gut," a condition including severe vomiting, dehydration and diarrhea, particularly during warm weather. Harmful bacteria associated with canine garbage gut include Staphylococcus aureus and salmonellae. ▼

Taking you from Disco to Deep Thought...

by Charles Turner

The Big Box

The Disco Box, Various, Rhino Records

The undisputed mega-movers of yesterdays dance music, Rhino Records, are in of moving some major disco wax to a record store near you...e t a 2-16-99. The Disco Box is a smoking 4 cd set consisting of 80 tracks, more than half of which were top ten hits. Rhino has successfully shrink wrapped over a decade of songs into a sleek package sure to have you toe-tappin as you complete those weekend chores. The sampler I received took me back, way back...from bongs to bell-bottoms, from black-lights to blackouts, from perms to platforms, and poppers poppers poppers. And yes its true some of these tunes sounded better stoned, its strange how the more things change the more they stay the same. Overall, the peter-meter pretty much stays in the red as we jump from disc to disc, it all boils down to definite memory stimulation. Time to name drop: Love Unlimited, O-Lettes, Featuring Sir Monti Rock, True Connection, The Jackson Robinson, Silver Convention, Wild Donna Summer, Chic, KC And The Village People, Gloria Gaynor, Narda Michael Walden, Lipps Inc., Gang, Change, The Boystown (better), Hot Chocolate, and The Girls to name a bunch, performing "Love's Theme", "Doctors Orders", "Down Tonite", "The Hustle", "You More, More, More", "Turn The Beat Play That Funky Music", "Car Coming Love", "Dance With Me", "Be Real", "Shake Your Groove", "Y.M.C.A.", "Le Freak", "Don't H.A.P.P.Y. Radio", "We Are Family", "Celebration", "The Glow Of Love", "Nots", and "Last Night A D.J. Saved My Life" just to name another bunch. The spark has been rekindled and the smoke is rising on a fire we thought we put out when we packed away the mirror ball, the fog machine, and those funky clothes that are back in style. The Disco Box rates 5 out of 5, it's a treasure chest of classics....A must have for anyone that appreciates dance music in it's purest form.

Kool and the Gang

personal preference....there is something 4 everybody 2 dance 2. Orchestra, Disco-Tex & The Sex-III, Silver Convention, Andrea Five, The Miracles, Vicki Sue Cherry, Rose Royce, Heatwave, Sunshine Band, Cheryl Lynn, Sylvester, G.O., Anita Ward, (I loved that name), Kool & The Gang (I liked this name even Weather ("It's Raining Men") such timeless dance hits as.... "Shame, Shame, Shame", "Get Sexy Thing", "Dancing Machine", "Around", "Fifth Of Beethoven", "Wash", "Boogie Nights", "Keep It Get Off", "In The Bush", "Got To Thing", "Livin' It Up (Friday Night You Want My Love)", "Bad Girls", "Heart Of Glass", "Funkytown", "Crusin' The Streets", "Forget Me

Inner Sanctuary

Ron Clerfield, Dream Manifestation, EverSound

An evening sea breeze kissed with the oceans salty mist ever-so-gently caresses our inner peace as we walk hand-n-hand along the oceans edge. Words need not be spoken as our eyes speak volumes. The setting sun is about to say it's daily good-bye as the approaching twilight beckons sister moon to illuminate our path and keep safe from harm. My tranquility is absolute, I never want leave this moment....I awake, it was all a Dream Manifestation. Ron Clearfield, the musical storyteller has woven New Age, Contemporary Classical, and Smooth Jazz into a magical tale that is sure to be told time and time again under endless consolations. The Arrangements are so soothing and warm that when you listen your mind will drift into utopia. Clearfield's cello work is stellar, the cello has always been my favorite....guess I'm biased but along with the whispers of the flute, the harmonic wisps of the English and french horn, the full bodied oboe, heartstrings of harp, the illuminous notes of the keys, and the elusive sounds of percussion form a union that rival the sweetest bouquet. Dream Manifestation is excellent from beginning to end. Follow the path that leads you "Home". Lose yourself in the winds that blow the "Farewell" flute notes like leaves across the grass. Come be consumed by the horns of "The Return And Dance Of Gaia", and then enjoy the musical splendor of the title cut "Dream Manifestation", the piano, keyboard, and of coarse cello work are intoxicating....as is the entire album. This cd rates a hands down 5 out of 5, it's a must must gotta have. Ask for the EverSound label.

Fullfilling

John Adorney, Beckoning, EverSound

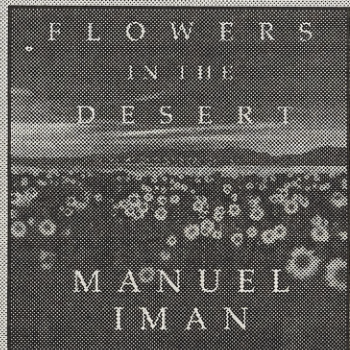

Here we go again, more beautifully arranged songs designed to have the listener take a journey on the wings of instrumental imagination thanks to the stellar artist John Adorney. His accolades include playing with the Philadelphia dance troop, numerous Denver folk clubs, a private practice licenced music therapist, and currently also teaches at the California State University in Long Beach (where does he find the time), so it's no wonder his music is so enchanting. Beckoning, his debut album on EverSound combines emotive melodies with a undertow of elegant chord changes and intricate rhythms. Concerned more with conveying emotion rather than perfect technique, his creative process seems to be that of uncovering, or discovering, rather than creation. The genuine rhythms come straight from the heart, just listen as his arrangements emerge from the speakers and you will agree. Highlights on the album include the strikingly beautiful "The Gift", it's the dawn of 11 vibrant compositions. The piano work on the title cut "Beckoning" is rich in feeling and sparkling in delivery. "The Gathering" conveys a contemporary depth bordering on tribal, the combination is enjoyable (it has that Lion King theme appeal). The last radio promo track is "Neverending", it's evocative melodies will dance in your head until you are musically fulfilled. Each of Adorney's songs are enchanting in their own way...5 out of 5 easy. I'll say it again, this is a New World Music wonder, a plus to any collection. It's where we all want to be at the end of the day.

Eastern Winds

Manuel Iman, Flowers In The Desert, EverSound Records

Come travel across the waters to Europe and join in on the festivities without ever leaving the room, compliments of Manuel Iman, one of Spains most innovative artists has released his third solo album, Flowers In The Desert, a fresh musical insight to the sound of World Music. Flowers In The Desert is his EverSound debut and his first recording avaiable worldwide, finally we can experience the passion and grace of his exotic rythms, it's as close as your nearest record store. The unique combination of Spanish and electric guitar create a beautiful collage that dance across the speakers, Flamenco style (a kind of Santana does Europe sound). "Gypsy Tears" the first track on the cd is a o-so sweet instrumental arrangement that utilizes the Takamine Heriade Spanish guitar to the fullest. "Rumba Chulita" is a festive dance in the cobblestone streets from beginning to end. The first sip of wine is always the best, the first drop of morning dew to caress the grape is always the sweetest, as with anything it's the "Journey Itself" that excites the senses. "Care" is an arrangement of melodies that accompany you on a long walk through the knee high fields that carpet the hills on a sun filled afternoon. The best way to describe "Zinger" is a witty arrangement of rock and jazz, electric fusion with attitude. The title cut "Flowers In The Desert" is a marriage of love and harmony who's offspring is sensitivity and inspitation, heard in each note played. 5 out of 5 is the rating this album recieves because of it's sucessfull blend of Flamenco, rock, jazz, Eastern, and classical music. If New World Music is your cup of tea, then Flowers will be a valued addition.

HIV HOTLINE

On the HIV Front...

by Sonya Cox
MGW/Staff

Man finally gets HIV license tag...

After a two-year battle with the Dept of Motor Vehicles that ended up in the courts, an El Cerrito man now has his motorcycle license plate that reads "HIV POS." The DMV had said it could be considered offensive. A federal court ruled that the DMV position was discriminatory and noted that it had allowed other similar plates such as CANCER, ALZHEIMER, and END HIV (which is owned by a Sacramento resident who also had to fight to get it).

New directions in research...

Although the new drug cocktails can reduce the viral load of those taking them to undetectable levels, some virus always lingers in lymph nodes, chromosomes, and other hidden places. A recent study with three people at the Univ of Washington shows that removing blood from a person who's been treated with the cocktails, and re-injecting it appeared to temporarily reduce the virus in these hiding places.

Another study at the Univ of San Francisco suggests that the body's cell-replacement ability may not be completely broken down as once thought. It appears, in some folks taking the three-drug cocktails, that healthy cells are being regenerated. The researchers say they'll intensify their search for ways to revive the body's damaged immune system.

AIN seeks poets for upcoming conference...

The AIDS Interfaith Network (AIN) is seeking original poems for reading at its Sixth Annual Conference on Mon Feb 15 (President's Day) — works that convey the insights and varied moods of people with AIDS, their family members, caregivers, and activists in the fight against AIDS. Call 481-5487 for info on conference attendance or poem submission (no more than three works per person, submission deadline Mon Feb 8).

March 21 actions planned for Sacramento...

The Golden State's newest lesbian/gay/bisexual/transgender organization — CAPE (California Alliance for Pride and Equality) — held its first meeting in early December in the Capitol Building. The group hopes to influence legislation and advocate for the community on issues such as organizing to fight Sen. Pete Knight's anti-gay marriage initiative slated to be introduced in March for inclusion on the California ballot, and organizing the California element of the "Equality Begins At Home -- Call to Action" to be held at the State Capital on March 21, 1999. The March 1999 event is part of a cooperative initiative with other states to draw attention to the Millennium 2000 March on Washington, D.C., at this same time next year. Local Sacramento Sam Catalano has been selected as the Administrative Assistant for CAPE. (Congratulations, Sam!)

Also on March 21 at the Capital, the NAMES Project Quilt will be displayed — part of a nationwide display at State Capitals being coordinated by the NAMES Foundation in San Francisco. The Sacramento Chapter of the Quilt plans to participate. To assist in producing this Quilt display, call James Ozanich at 916-484-5646 or e-mail at OzMar@aol.com. To obtain information about CAPE, contact them at 584 Castro Street # 501, San Francisco CA 94114, e-mail Calcape@aol.com, or call 415-252-0810.

Imperial Court hosts fundraiser...

CGNIE Emperor Ernie Brown and his court recently hosted an auction at the Mercantile Saloon to benefit the Kirby Johanson Memorial Fund. Kirby, remembered for his gruff voice and uncanny sense of humor, enjoyed many years of involvement with the Court. Shortly after his death in Sept 1994, over 250 friends sponsored a benefit to help Kirby's mom meet cremation expenses. More than twice the amount needed was collected, and the excess funds were donated to an on-going account in Kirby's memory to assist with burial expenses for people with AIDS. The Imperial Auction, with Large Marge and Opal Gardner as the celebrity auctioneers, raised over $1,000 to supplement the continuing fund. Thanks to all who participated.

Health officer changes counties...

Dr. Bette Hinton, county health officer for the past 10 years, has transferred to a similar position in Yolo County. She helped develop the HIV health services program for Sacramento, El Dorado and Placer Counties that provides mental, dental and medical services to 1,300 people. She and her husband, Robert Caulk, will continue to reside in Davis.

New drug arrives, with warning...

Abacavir (Ziagen) has received Food and Drug Administration approval for use as part of the multi-drug cocktails taken by people with AIDS. In the majority who so far experience no side effects, it appears to work well, but it comes with a warning that about 5 percent of those taking it might likely have a reaction (fever, nausea, vomiting, rash, usually within the first 6 weeks of therapy), and that this reaction can be life-threatening. Folks experiencing what may be a reaction are warned to immediately stop taking the drug because a second reaction will be much more severe. The drug, by Glaxo Wellcome, is a potent nucleoside analog. It requires swallowing one tablet twice a day, without dietary restrictions. Trials showed that, in combination with AZT and 3TC, 75 percent of never-treated adults saw their viral load drop to undetectable levels. Cost — about $3,540 per year.

Africans in crisis...

On top of the scarcity of condoms and the refusal of many African men to use them, there's apparently now also a possibility that some condom makers have sent their substandard brittle, leaky, ill-fitting condoms to this country, and inspectors have let them in. As a result, many couples who do practice safe sex are left helpless. In a country where AIDS is rampant and almost no one can afford the cocktails that enable others to live with the virus, condoms are the only lifeline. The problem seems to stem chiefly from factories that hire cheap labor in India, Malaysia, Thailand and China. The World Health Organization says the inspection criteria have been changed. Unfortunately, this has likely been occurring for the past 7 years throughout Africa, bringing to the continent a place in history where 25 percent of all adults have HIV, over 200 people a day die in Zimbabwe, one million AIDS orphans reside in Uganda, and the epidemic in South Africa has grown to 1,500 new infections per day, the fastest rate in the world.

Additionally, educating the public by speaking out about AIDS is more than frowned upon. Last month, an HIV-positive volunteer field worker for the National Association for People Living with HIV in South Africa was beaten to death by her neighbors. The woman, who publicly announced her infection over the radio and television on World AIDS Day this past December to bring visibility to the crisis there, was accused by the mob that attacked her in her home of bringing shame on their community by revealing her HIV status.

French officials trace transmission back to surgeon...

A French doctor may be the second health care specialist in the 17 years of the epidemic to have transmitted HIV to one of his patients (a U.S. dentist several years ago infected several of his patients). The Paris orthopedic specialist apparently transmitted the virus to a 67-year-old woman during surgery in 1992. The transmission occurred 21 months before the doctor was even aware that he was infected, and was eventually traced back to him as the only possible source. He apparently contracted HIV through a needle-stick injury in 1983. Over 900 of the physician's former surgical patients were contacted by health officials, but the woman was the only one infected with HIV. Under the circumstances, this country's Centers for Disease Control is encouraging all doctors who frequently come into contact with patients' blood to be regularly tested for the virus.

Dementia medication does well in trials...

A treatment for AIDS dementia is now entering phase III clinical trials in the United States and has already undergone more general phase III trials in Europe. Europeans with severe dementia treated with Memantine showed significant improvement in functional independence and daily living activities. The AIDS Clinical Trial Group, which is conducting the study, says that Memantine appears to restore impaired neuron function in those with the neurological complications that persist even while they're being treated with optimal anti-retroviral meds. The drug may be useful for treating people with senile dementia, Alzheimer's disease, and neuropathy, as well as AIDS dementia (varying levels of confusion, memory lapses, depression, agitation, sleeplessness, or a variety of other symptoms which affect a large percentage of people with AIDS). There is little treatment available for AIDS dementia other than AZT, and a very few others to a lesser degree, which have the ability to cross the blood-brain barrier. AZT is kept in as many treatment combinations as possible. It would be of great assistance to have additional effective medications to reduce or halt the effects of dementia.

Controversy over HIV identification...

Across the nation, debate is raging over the use of name reporting for HIV-infected people. After 4 years, Texas has decided to abandon the use of unique identifier codes that allow for anonymous HIV surveillance, deciding instead to start reporting cases by name. Maryland has used the non-name system as long as Texas, reporting no problems with its surveillance ability. Thirty-two states thus far have adopted some form of HIV reporting but, of these, Texas and Maryland are the only two that used unique identifiers. AIDS activists, including those in California, support the use of coded identification, fearing that the reporting of names will result in a decrease in the number of people willing to get tested for HIV, and possible discrimination if their infections are discovered. However, Surgeon General David Satcher says that using names discourages testing only for those who don't understand the system, and that what they see as a risk is greatly exaggerated. The Centers for Disease Control recently recommended the use of name-based reporting, but leaves the final decision up to individual states.

In Sacramento, Boyce Hinman of Lambda Letters recently compiled in-depth information on the proposed federal AIDS reporting rules, and encouraged Californians to participate in the review process by sending their comments to the CDC.

HEALTH AND WELLNESS

Cancer Season in America

by Mary Ann Swisler
MGW/Staff

Taking charge of a woman's health and in the process, preventing the onset of breast cancer has been the message delivered each October since 1987 during National Breast Cancer Awareness Month (NBCAM).

Yet, with all its encouragement to get women to decrease their risk of breast cancer through exercise, a healthier diet and getting a mammogram beginning at age 40, not all women's health care activists are impressed. Still others resent that the monthlong blitzkrieg of races, health fairs, public service announcements, are all sponsored by Zeneca Pharmaceuticals, the largest maker of breast cancer drugs in the nation.

According to several top activists interviewed who have consistently railed against the "Smart women get mammograms, dumb women get breast cancer" campaign by repeating some controversial yet still little-known facts about the device:

- 2 out of 10 surgical biopsies resulting from a "positive" mammogram turn out to be benign.
- A tumor can grow 8 to 10 years before it will show up on a mammogram, and even microscopic tumors detected early on can still be lethal.

Northern Californian environmental activist and artist Polly Strand said it's a wolf-in-sheep's-clothing partnership between the Dallas, TX-based Susan G. Komen Foundation and Zeneca, needlessly exposing women to radiation through increased use of mammography.

The 5K "Race for the Cure" series is the hallmark of the Komen Foundation's fundraising efforts, now held in 86 cities and attracting approximately 500,000 participants, according to the Komen Foundation. They have become inextricably entwined with Zeneca, giving and receiving awards and grants to each other, including six recent scientific research grants on different aspects of tamoxifen use. The Race for the Cure web page trumpets tamoxifen as a way to prevent breast cancer, despite that the FDA officially downgraded the drug to a form of "risk reduction."

On political lobbying alone, the Komen Foundation has ponied up $921,000 in 1996, the most recent financial figures available. And like the $2.5 billion mammography industry they feverishly promote, the Komen Foundation's fortunes rise each year, as public support builds for their message that early detection through mammography beginning at age 40 will save lives. In 1996 alone, the Komen Foundation, which enjoys non-profit tax status, earned an impressive $4 million after expenses from management, fundraising and promotion expenses, according to the group's 1996 federal income tax records.

This is the "grass-roots" efforts that NBCAM is often portrayed as?

The Komen people have repeatedly defended their program saying that mammography is the best detection that medical technology has available today.

"Every month should be breast cancer awareness month; (NBCAM) is simply a slick P.R. month," commented Fran Visco, the director of the, the Washington, D.C.-based National Breast Cancer Coalition (NBCC), the largest and most influential lobbying group in the nation for breast cancer issues. Visco added during a recent interview, "NBCC is an education and policy organization. Part of the reason NBCC came into existence was that breast cancer was being reduced to urging women to get a mammogram."

Cynthia Pearson from the Washington, D.C.-based National Women's Health Network told CancerTimes that the Month is a way for Zeneca to build its customer base. "It's like when you're sneezing your brains out and you think 'I remember seeing some ad for an antihistamine,' and you go out and buy it." Zeneca's breast cancer drug tamoxifen, was recently given preliminary approval by the FDA as a risk reduction agent, after a massive clinical trial on healthy women. Arimidex, for use on advanced breast cancer patients, and Zoladex, for use on advanced prostate cancer and endometriosis, are also Zeneca products.

But it is a lack of attention paid to environmental links to cancer that appeared to irritate many in the breast cancer community interviewed. Of particular concern is Zeneca AgricChemical Corporation's manufacture of the pesticide acetylchlor, because of the possible links between cancer and pesticide exposure.

Activist and author Judy Brady spearheads a Cancer Industry Tour during October to shed light on the fact that it is Zeneca who benefits the most by sponsoring NBCAM.

Breast Cancer Action—San Francisco's Executive

Director Barbara Brenner angrily denounced NBCAM and the censorship capabilities that Zeneca is able to exercise on all of the sophisticated publicity materials in their armory. "As the sole corporate sponsor of (NBCAM), Zeneca has the final word on all their materials. They have full editorial control; didn't know that did you? And the word carcinogen never appears anywhere." The public shouldn't be surprised, she said, that environmental causes of cancer are not once mentioned in the mountain of reading material, promotional spots and flyers that women are pummeled with during NBCAM.

The scientific community has blasted away on the actual diagnostic abilities of mammography, which Americans spend over $2 billion on annually. Scientific American's 1996 special edition on cancer reported that "the majority (between 60 and 93 percent)" of trouble areas picked up by mammograms, are benign.

Three years ago, the prestigious British medical journal The Lancet likewise harpooned the mammography bandwagon. "Since the benefit achieved is marginal, the harm caused is substantial and the costs incurred are enormous, we suggest that public funding for breast cancer screening in any age group is not justifiable."

Understandably Zeneca Pharmaceutical's explanation is more upbeat: "Zeneca founded the U. S. National Breast Cancer Awareness month in 1987 and continues to support this annual event—a total commitment that has exceeded $1 million. The main aim is to educate the public and healthcare professionals on the benefits of earlier detection. The business has led by example and in 1989 became one of the first US companies to offer on-site mammography screening for employees. Since then breast cancer has been discovered in 12 members of staff and thanks to its early detection all of them have been suitably treated."

So, Are You Going to Say Yes?

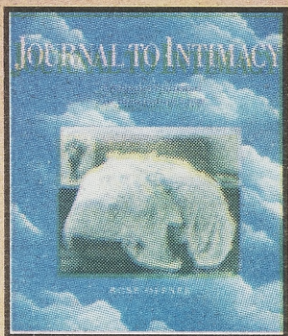

Happy Valentine's Day: Wedding Workbook for the "Planning-Impaired"

After careful consideration, you have decided to take the big plunge. You want to affirm your love and commitment by entering into a holy union. "Careful planning can help avoid a lot of the stressful things that can ruin your perfect day," says Rev. Amy Long, Sacramento author of the new book, The Ultimate Wedding/Ceremony Workbook For The-Impaired. "Having officiated at numerous commitment Holy Unions and wedding ceremonies, Long says, "One of the most stressful things about planning a ceremony is trying to keep all the decisions (and questions) in your head and wondering if you've covered your bases." The book has large print and perforated pages so you can tear them out and either delegate the tasks or take them with you as needed. The book is broken down into sections, making it easy for the couple to plan each part separately. For those who are 'budget-challenged,' there are numerous ideas for saving money. For instance, inexpensive halls can be rented through local parks, recreation centers, and clothes can be found in consignment shops and newspaper ads. During her eight years as minister, Long has developed some unique non-denominational ceremonies. "More and more people are wanting to have input on what goes into their ceremonies," says Long, "so I have created a way from people to customize a ceremony to suit their personal needs." The Appendix contains all the words any couple needs to create a beautiful, memorable, personal ceremony. Regardless of the budget, many couples these days are finding that time is their most valuable commodity. "With my book, all they need is a phone book, a pencil and a telephone and the hard part is done," says Long. "It's a workbook, so don't be afraid to write in it, makes notes in it and tear out pages." The Ultimate Wedding/Ceremony Workbook For The 'Planning-Impaired', $16.95, Apex Publications, Box 2166, Elk Grove, CA 95759, 800-929-7889. Rev. Amy Long is also available to perform commitment ceremonies and can be reached at 535-7685. ▼

Journal to Intimacy

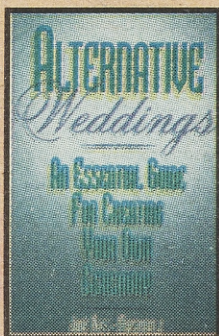

For couples looking for a way to find real intimacy, and build a solid, loving partnership, Journal to Intimacy by Rose Offner can give them the inspiration and guidance they seek. A journal that provides the interaction that you and your partner deserve. Filled with guided exercises and romantic images, Journal to Intimacy will teach you and your partner to communicate better, fostering a greater understanding of each other's needs and an increased confidence in your ability to talk freely about yourselves and your relationship. What better gift to give yourselves for Valentines Day! Info: (510) 559-1600. ▼

Alternative Weddings

When considering the traditional notions of marriage are in the face of a 50 percent divorce rate, the recent furor over homosexual marriages and decreasing membership in organized religions are only a few of the reasons marriage in the '90s is so complicated. Alternative Weddings fulfills a need offering information on how to infuse a ceremony with personal significance or simply spice up a conventional ceremony by incorporating elements from various religious and non-religious traditions. Marriage, Who Needs It?

by Lee Nichols

MGW/Contributing Editor

From the dawn of time until quite recently marriage was a commercial transaction through which men bought sex slaves. Three pigs and a sack of corn got a man a wife, and if she didn't "put out" he was free to put her out in the cold, or, if he liked, to rape her. Hell, he'd bought and paid for her so nobody could tell him what he could and couldn't do with her.

Sex, of course, often produced children, children who were—until the industrial revolution—economic assets, assets which were owned by the man, just as he owned his ox. The only "family value" that counted was the value of the food the family produced. The idea that "love and marriage go together like a horse and carriage," as Sinatra sang, is a mythology of very recent invention.

Unfortunately a lot of lesbians and gay men seem to have bought into the new mythology and now feel deprived because they are denied access to the ceremonial ritual. Most would, of course, delete "obey" from the promise to "love and honor," but they'd still vow to stay together 'til death did them part. But it is divorce, not death, that parts most straight marriages, and it will be divorce, not death, that will sunder gay marriages when—not if—they are finally made legal. One day, probably within a decade, the Supreme Court will apply to this issue the logic Justice Kennedy articulated in Romer v. Evans and will find that all laws that single out homosexuals for "special" denials of rights, or which apply "special" punishment for sex acts by homosexuals are unconstitutional.

But that day is not yet here so for the next two years our energy and our economic resources will be diverted to the campaign to defeat doddering old "Pete" Knight's Defense of Marriage initiative. Like you, I'll sign up to help defeat it and I'll give money I can ill afford, and all the while I'll be wondering why. Why aren't I working to achieve equal benefits for the partners of those who can't, or chose not to, marry? Why am I allowing the bastards to start fights that suck money from my wallet, money I ought to be spending on un-wedding presents for friends who've decided to share a bed for the foreseeable future.

On Saturday, January 16, I was proud to be among those present when Jeanne and Ellie's pledged their love in the public ceremony at the Convention Center. I was also proud of the religious leaders who stood up against the bigotry of their churches. But I could not keep my attention focused. I kept thinking of the things we really need. Help for run aways. . . and throw aways. . . who now must sell their bodies to survive, radical changes in our schools so lesbian and gay children can be protected from verbal and physical assault, freedom from police "stings" that catch gay men cruising for sex. . . just like straight guys do at singles bars, the right to be treated by the IRS just like heterosexuals, the right to be secure in employment and, most of all, the guarantee that how we have sex can not be used to deny to anyone the rights and privileges enjoyed by any other citizen of the United States. That, not marriage, is what I wish we were fighting for.
